

Paris, Thursday 10 February 2011

The International Chamber of Commerce is pleased to announce the date of its 2nd annual International Mediation Conference:

Win-Win Strategies: Tools for corporate dispute management

Paris, Thursday, 10 February 2011

Topic:

Dealing with disputes only after they have arisen exposes companies to high risks including losing time and money, missing business opportunities and tying-up internal resources in complex and lengthy dispute resolution procedures.

This is why companies increasingly recognize the economic benefits of developing an in-house dispute management system. Such systems help companies to plan their dispute resolution strategy when drafting contracts, to address disputes before they escalate and to analyze the pros and cons of a wide spectrum of dispute resolution methods.

This conference aims to provide practical, hands-on advice and tools to companies seeking to maximize their options and to create a methodical, efficient approach to solving disputes. Mediation will be set out as one among many other dispute resolution procedures, which due to its versatile nature can be used at different stages of projects and disputes.

Corporate representatives and experienced dispute resolution professionals will combine forces, using concrete examples, tested tools, case studies and exercises to ensure that participants can create efficient in-house dispute management systems in their own companies.

Venue: International Chamber of Commerce (ICC)
38 Cours Albert 1er, 75008 Paris, France

Who should attend?

In-house counsel, members of corporate management, dispute resolution practitioners and attorneys in law firms.
